Lawyer, Kazakhstan

Anton Alexeyev specializes in labor, tax, civil, and administrative law. He has more than 14-year experience and advises local and foreign clients on a wide range of issues, assisting them with efficient development and protection of their businesses in Kazakhstan.

His profound expertise in labor legislation and occupational health and safety issues and past work experience as a state labor inspector provide Anton with a unique insight into the state control mechanisms. This allows him effectively protecting the clients' interests in the course of inspections, investigations of accidents, and interaction with trade unions. Anton supports complicated labor law cases, including structuring of labor relations, resolution of disputes, and search for optimal solutions in case of dismissals.

Furthermore, Anton is a certified tax advisor and has excellent knowledge in the tax legislation issues. He supports transactions and advises on taxation issues both local and foreign companies.

His separate focal area is judicial practice. Anton has extensive procedural experience and focuses on civil, labor and administrative disputes, including disputes over issues regulated by the Administrative Procedure Code. His excellent knowledge in administrative procedural legislation allows developing effective defense strategies and achieving positive resolutions in cases of high legal and procedural complexity, which require unconventional solutions.

Due to a combination of the above qualities, Anton has become a valuable member of a highly qualified team of AEQUITAS lawyers, capable of achieving excellent results and ensuring reliable legal protection for our clients at all times.
